

switchasia
GRANTS PROGRAMME

"We all can contribute for Clean, Green and Healthy Bungamati"

Ganesh Laxmi Bramhacharya. 52 Tafa Tole of Bungamati was always in need of manure for her rooftop farming and her nearby kitchen garden. The solid waste management training offered by Lumanti under Parya Sampada Project was helpful to meet her needs while managing her household wastes. Further she was delighted to recycle the plastic wastes she produced knitting into useful products.

"I believe that we all can contribute a little to make Bungamati clean, green and healthy. The training really helped us to manage our own waste and minimize to bring it to such a far away landfill"; she added, "I carry my own cotton bag for shopping and ignore the single use plastic bags from shop. I believe if everyone start practicing to reduce and reuse their wastes, the community will be neat and clean."

Bungamati, the famous pilgrimage site attracts many visitors through out the year are gradually showing their initiatives to be responsible by taking care of their waste and keeping the heritage site neat and clean. Its simple, it is our waste, and we manage it.

Partner Organizations:

